OUT OF POLITICS AND INTO BUSINESS.

With the Waterways question about to become a thing of the past, citizens of Edmonton who have waited three years for the opening of the north country while the project which was to have achieved that desirable end was being made a political football of will draw a sigh of relief and square away for the activity which is certain to follow in this city the commencement of operations upon the actual construction of the road.

Probably no railway project in the history of the dominion of Canada ever went through such a gauntlet of opposition as has this one for the development of Alberta's hinterland, and in the mixed representations which have been made by differing political interests in the heat of agitation Edmontonians have come, at times, to almost doubt the possibilities of the country toward which this city must turn in its hope for greatness.

But with the railway assured, whatever doubt may have been created in the public mind as to the possibilities of the lower Athabasca country will disappear as the mists before the summer sun. That the country is enormously rich in natural resources of a kind which are most valuable to the economy of the province of Alberta will become at once an accepted and established fact, and commencement of the development of the north country will scarcely wait for the completion of the railway, no matter how speedy may be the work of construction. The known oil and asphalt resources of McMurray and MacKay, which will commence to have an immediate value through the guarantee that the date when transportation facilities will be available is now only a matter of months, may be expected to attract the attention of oil men at once, and it would not be at all surprising to see a great number of drilling rigs at work in the north field within the next few months, supplementing the work already undertaken by the daring pioneers in the oil fields who have ventured their money in that district against great handicaps. With any reasonable co-operation upon the part of the dominion government toward the surveying of the country, the settlement of the agricultural districts both surrounding McMurray and between this city and that point may be expected to commence at once. And best of all, from an Edmonton point of view, is the fact that by the ratification of the agreement with the MacArthurs—which will undoubtedly follow speedily upon the ratification of the bill before the house—there will be released for construction purposes the seven million dollars which has been tied up in the banks for these two years and ten months while the railway enterprise went through the gamut of political jeopardy. The agreement which the railway builders are entering into with the government provides for the commencement of construction this year, which means that the beneficial effects should be felt in this city immediately.

PAYS TO BUILD THE BEST CLASS OF RAILWAY THERE IS MONEY TO BUILD.

The point which apparently gets away from the opposition in the Waterways discussion is that the railway deal provides for the ownership of the railway by the railway company after it is built. The construction of the railway is by no means the finality. The subsequent operation is the thing. For the people who take over the project to centre their efforts upon making a profit out of the construction would be poor policy indeed. If the owners could build a certain class of railway for $16,000 a mile, and a better class for $20,000 a mile, the additional $4,000 a mile would be more profitably employed were it expended to better the class of railway than it would be as the credit side of a bank account. Its existence, as an asset, would not be any less a fact were it in railway betterments than it would be if it were piled up in a corner of the company's office in bundles of dollar bills. The Grand Trunk Pacific railway has shown the world that it pays to build the very best railway that there can be found money to build; that the more substantial the original construction the lower the cost of maintenance after built, and, naturally, the less the cost of handling the traffic presented. Upon the construction of these railways the Grand Trunk is spending from two to three times the amount per mile of the Waterways guarantee, and Dunvegan specifications are identical with Grand Trunk specifications.

Aside entirely from the circumstance that Dunvegan specifications guarantee a first-class road, ordinary financial prudence is sufficient guarantee that the MacArthurs will build a road which will be the best their money can secure and they undoubtedly expect that having built such a road they will make money out of the operation of a transportation system which will serve a country so rich in natural resources that the best railway on the continent could not fail to make a handsome profit from the traffic arising therefrom.

The railway company which, having $20,000 a mile to build a railway, failed to spend the entire twenty in getting the best railway that the money in hand would build, would have the seven foolish virgins outclassed in foolishness.

NEWSPAPERS DO HALF POLICE WORK AND GET NO CREDIT.

Speaking in Chicago on Wednesday before a business men's banquet, Lord Northcliffe, whose title may have been acquired in devious ways, but whose newspaper genius was never a matter of doubt, declared that "newspapers do one-half of the police work of the world and get no credit for it."

Pretty nearly every working newspaper man and many policemen have recognized this long ago, and in some cities the police are sufficiently modern in their ideas to appreciate the fact that it stands them in hand to co-operate with the newspapers in preventing and detecting law-breakers by the efficient and comparatively inexpensive method of giving publicity, day by day, to the news of the police station.

In Edmonton, however, no such modern ideas prevail. The theory upon which the police in this city work is that there is some sort of public menace in the publication of police news, and police officers are given to understand by their chief that the giving of news to the newspapers is sufficient cause for their dismissal. Edmonton's record of crime since this system has been adopted may be accepted as a criterion by which to judge whether or not it makes for the prevention of crime.

GAS EXPERTS' WARNING AGAINST PRIVATE OWNERSHIP.

The Clapp and Huntley gas report took two months to prepare, completely fills 66 closely typewritten pages and cost the city $4,000, but for one paragraph alone it was worth the money.

"Not only in the laying of the mains and in construction and maintenance work," would conflict occur between the city's interest and a private concern should such be introduced in the form of a franchise-holding gas company, but, says the report, "the principal result would be the entrance of a gas company into municipal politics, which has proved so disastrous in many cities heretofore."

Besides being gas experts of some considerable calibre and little susceptible to the workings of the oracle, Messrs. Clapp and Huntley seemed to be pretty fair observers as they pass along the way. Students of the science of civics who have given attention to the effect of municipal ownership as contrasted with corporation control of franchises have no difficulty in recognizing that one of the most certain disasters to follow the introduction of a franchise-holding company into the affairs of a city arises out of the pernicious activity of such a concern in the city's municipal politics. Clapp and Huntley evidently see this very plainly.

Their advice to the city to beware, coming as it does from men who are in no wise interested in Edmonton's civic politics, may be regarded as the first-hand warning of men who understand the consequences and the dangers of private ownership in a city such as this.

PREPARED FOR PROGRESSIVENESS THEY KNOW IMPOSSIBLE.

The completeness of the hypocrisy of the conservative allegations of conversion to the belief in government ownership was most completely unmasked in the legislature when the member for Camrose, George P. Smith, told a little of the inside history of the 1910 revolt in the legislature and disclosed how he and others of the liberal persuasion had attempted to get the conservative members of the house at that time to endorse and approve a motion for the construction of the Waterways railway by the province of Alberta.

In pretending, as they do, that they are now in favor of government ownership, the conservatives are confronted with their record of having made impossible the construction of the road by the province at a time when such a solution was not altogether impossible, as it is today.

It was ever thus. The conservatives are quite prepared to adopt the progressive attitude so long as they are quite sure it is impracticable.

TODAY IN DOMINION HISTORY.

John Talon Lesperance, one of the greatest of Canadian critics, and a noted author and journalist, was born in St. Louis, Mo., of French-Canadian parents, 75 years ago today. He completed his education in Freiburg, Germany, and then returned to the United States, then to the very of civil war. Throughout that conflict Lesperance fought valiantly on the side of the Confederacy. After the close of the war Lesperance returned to the land of his fathers, settling first at St. Johns, P.Q. In 1872 he joined the staff of a Montreal newspaper, and wrote brilliant literary criticisms and editorial articles, under the nom de plume of "Talon," and also of "La Chênaie." Thirty years ago he assumed the editorship of the Illustrated Canadian News, and in that capacity he discovered many new writers of talent and genius. The early years of Charles G. O'Brien were passed upon and published by Lesperance, and he also gave the encouragement of print to several other Canadian authors who have since won fame. In addition to his critical and editorial work, Lesperance wrote many charming essays, much verse, and a novel, "The Bastonais." The latter, published in 1877, affords a picture of Canadian society of the latter part of the 18th century, and more particularly of that troubled period when Montcalm and Amherst, with their rugged continental troops, were attempting the conquest of Canada. Arnold's men were called Bastonais, called by the habitants "Bastonnais," hence the title of the tale. From the viewpoint of the modern novelist the book contains many faults, but there are more than atoned for by the highly interesting and apparently authentic descriptions of the customs, costumes, habits and mode of life of the people of a picturesque era. In his latter years the author was provincial immigration agent in Montreal.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

MAHARAJAH OF BIKANER, 33 TODAY, HAS IMPOSING NAME.

If you should have occasion to address a letter to the Maharajah of Bikaner, the proper form would be: Colonel His Highness Raj Rajeswar Narinder Singh Bahadur, Maharajah of Bikaner, Bikaner, Rajputana, India. Moreover, the young ruler of Bikaner, who will celebrate his 32nd birthday today, is entitled to write after his imposing name, Maharajah G. C. I. E., K. C. S. L., K. C. I. E., and A. D. C.

The Maharajah rules, with the assistance of British officials, over a country 22,000 square miles in extent. Bikaner, in Rajputana, is one of the largest cities in India, with a population of about a million. While the Maharajah is surrounded by grandeur and pomp, most of his subjects are desperately poor. They live chiefly by pasturage, breeding camels and horses that are famous throughout India. The Maharajah's army consists of 1,007 men, of whom 571 are mounted on camels and 219 on horses.

His Highness was born October 3, 1880, and succeeded to the throne at the age of seven, although he was not invested with full ruling powers until his 18th birthday. He served with the British army in China in command of the famous Bikaner camel corps, for which he was decorated. He was also present in China in command of the service in India following the great famine of 1898-1900. The Maharajah is well known as a sportsman, polo, tennis and motor racing, as well as big game shooting, are among his recreations.

When the French attempted to stir a ditch between the provinces of Siam, they were defeated by grantees at home and "stealers" at the scene of operations. In these days the Maharajah was recognized as a pestiferous insect, but it was not known that she was a pestiferous insect, she was a dangerous business as a common carrier of the germs of yellow fever and tropical malaria. When Uncle Sam undertook the ditch-digging job, he was fully informed of the evil propensities of the feminine mosquitoes. Therefore he called Col. William Crawford Gorgas to the carpet and said: "Kill them right down there and fill the pesky stealers." And William did. Col. Gorgas is a native of Abolite, where he was born on October 3, 1854. He graduated from the University of the South in 1875, from Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York, in 1880, and in 1880 entered the United States army as a surgeon. In choosing his career, he was following in the footsteps of his father, who was a distinguished general in the Confederate army. His big job was in stamping out the yellow fever in Havana, and in 1897 he was made chief sanitary officer of the Isthmian Canal Zone. He went about draining swamps, and fumigating houses with kerosene, and screening pools with kerosene, and screening the canal workers, and preaching sanitation day and night, until the ease-loving Americans caught the sanitation fever and began to clean up on their own account. As the result of Col. Gorgas' war on insects and rats, and his campaign for cleanliness, the "zone" has been transformed from the worst malarial area in the universe to a health resort, visited by many thousands of trippers during the winter months. Col. Gorgas has recently accepted a commission from the Isthmian Canal Commission to study Guayaquil, which will become an important port when the canal is opened.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

Portuguese Celebrate Third Anniversary of the Republic.

A great patriotic festival, beginning today and extending over Saturday and Sunday, will be held in Lisbon to celebrate the third anniversary of the overthrow of the monarchy and the establishment of the republic. Portugal is now a republic in fact as well as in name. The faith which the monarchists have served only to strengthen the republican spirit. Now that Spain has reduced further tribute to the invading "armies," there is nothing left for the royalists to do but engage in printed propaganda. Most significant fact of all is the falling out of the circles of influence of the monarchist press. In the Portugal there is not a single powerful newspaper now. The restoration of the Brazilians, the great royalist papers, although not subjected to any official interference, have voluntarily dwindled in popularity. Even the clergy, who were so bitterly opposed to republicanism at first, now manifest an inclination toward acceptance of the new regime. The republican revolutionaries were nearly all freethinkers, and bitterly anti-clerical, but they have shown far more toleration than the church dignitaries expected or hoped for.

Portugal's long history has been marked by many and radical changes in government, but none so sudden and complete as the revolution of 1910. In Lisbon on October 4, 1910, which in a day changed the monarchy of the House of Braganza into a republic. On October 5 the palace flag was hauled down and replaced by the red and green banner of the republic, and young King Manuel fled to England.

Anciently Portugal was known as Lusitania. After a nine years' struggle the Lusitanians submitted to Roman domination about 137 B.C. Just 15 centuries ago this year, in 713, the country was conquered by the Moors, and for a long time they reigned over the land. After many bloody wars between the followers of the Cross and the Crescent, in the twelfth century Alfonso Henriquez, assisted by crusaders on their way to the holy land, defeated the Moorish kings, captured Lisbon, and was proclaimed king. In the thirteenth century Portugal was the father of his country, built 41 cities and towns in Portugal. In the fifteenth century John I. the Great carried his arms into Africa, and seized Madeira and the Canaries. Lisbon was made the capital in 1213. This century was the golden age of Portugal, marked forever in history by the exploits of the great Portuguese navigators, Vasco da Gama and Pedro Alvarez Cabral. The Portuguese navigators were enabled by discovering a passage to the East Indies by the Cape of Good Hope, and discovering Brazil, and laid the foundation of a great new world empire which was long under the dominion of the Portuguese. The Portuguese established settlements in India. In 1580 the Spanish king seized Portugal, but in 1640 the Portuguese again established settlements in India. In 1763, the Portuguese country in 1763, but the independence of Portugal was saved by the aid of the English. In 1807 Napoleon attempted the conquest of Portugal, and the royal family fled to Brazil, England again went to the rescue and Wellington defeated the invaders. In 1821 Brazil declared its independence of the mother country. Now, after a century of poverty and misrule, Portugal

OST MAN RANS UP TO SEARCH FOR FAMILY

Believed that He was Drowned in the Delaware Fifty Years Ago.

Philadelphia, Friday, October 3.—Asserting that his parents believed that he had been drowned during the last of the first century, Charles Patrick Collins has appeared in Philadelphia for the first time in nearly half a century in quest of relatives, whom he hopes to find.

The story of Collins' disappearance and subsequent career, and the search for his family, is a most interesting one.

At the age of 12 he was taken out to the coast of a sailing vessel and was made an apprentice, but he was not allowed to stay on the vessel, and he was taken back to his home.

After several years spent as a jockey on the various racetracks in the east, Collins devoted his attention to driving tractors and horses, and his name soon became known and respected all over the grand circuit as one of the best drivers of his kind.

WILSON PREPARES TO SIGN FIRST REFORM MEASURE

Complete Revision and General Reduction of All Duties on Foreign Merchandise.

Washington, Oct. 3.—President Wilson began work today with the prospect of signing before night the first great reform measure of his administration, and the first democratic tariff revision bill passed in nearly a century of years.

Democratic leaders of the house and senate had smoothed the way for the legislative step for approval of the bill, congressional clerks had engrossed and prepared the house document for the president's signature, and it remained only to secure the final action of the house of representatives in receding from its cotton futures tax amendment to complete the tariff bill.

Embraced in the legislation, which has been pending in congress since April 8 are a complete revision, and a general reduction of nearly all imports levied by this government on foreign merchandise.

A new 40-cent tax that will strike every person having a net income above $2,000 and an array of important changes in customs.

SPYING OUT THE LAND.

Saskatoon, Oct. 3.—Yesterday's Saskatoon news item of the excursion to the mouth of the Goose Lake country to Outlook, taken under the auspices of the board of trade here, proved most successful.

Men took the trip and report that merchants and farmers in the country which they passed are most optimistic as to their business.

The men also reported that the country to the magnificent crops they have had this year. Threshing is making fine progress and in some places is nearly completed.

MEXICAN GOVERNOR ARRESTED.

Gustav, Mexico, Oct. 3.—Manned by the governor of the state of Chihuahua, and several members of the legislature, have been arrested by the newly appointed military governor, Manuel Chino, for having been arrested by the military governor of Chihuahua on the ground that the legislature had decided to grant him permission to surrender his post.

Chino then arrested the state house with troops and surrounded the governor and legislators. They will be sent to Mexico City.

RECORD PRICE PAID FOR RIGHTS.

London, Oct. 2.—The record price of £150,000 was paid yesterday at auction for three years' rights in a film of "Anthony and Cleopatra" for the British Leda. The first bid was £20,000. The purchase price is considered a great bargain, as "Quo Vadis" has already made $150,000.

EMANATION OF RADIUM GAS SUFFICIENT.

London, Oct. 2.—The radium institute announced last night the discovery of the fact that emanation of radium gas given off by radium is as efficient for curative purposes as radium itself.

The gas, although given off constantly, does not weaken the radium substance. The institute has only four grammes of radium in its possession, but the use of the gas will increase its utility enormously.

GUESTS OF CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE.

Winnipeg, Oct. 3.—Next Tuesday one of the most representative bodies of men of business in this and the province of Manitoba and the city of Winnipeg will leave for Chicago to be the guests of the Chicago chamber of commerce.

HAD ITCHING PILES FOR 27 YEARS

Often Laid Up for Days at a Time—
A Wonderful Tribute to Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Four people were ever more enthusiastic in praising Dr. Chase's Ointment than the writer of this letter. When you read the description of his case you will not wonder why Dr. John Johnson, Coleman, Alta., writes: "Three years ago I was cured of itching piles of 27 years' standing by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I used to think that death would be the only relief I would ever get from the terrible misery of this. Often I was laid up for three days at a time, and at other times worked when I should have been in bed."

"Dr. Chase's Ointment" works sixty dollars a box instead of sixty cents. I am a different man since using it. I am farming all the time, and never miss a day. Words fail to express my gratitude for the cure this ointment made for me. I cannot tell him as much about it as it deserves. Anyone doubting this can write direct to me."

RIBBON SLIPPERS.

A new idea for ribbon slippers is that of using two shades of ribbon, having one shade under the other. The two shades are woven together to form a basket weave. The two-inch katin ribbon, "lacking the ribbons where they were joined."

Any bedroom slippers could be used to serve as a guide over which to shape the woven ribbon. The top is slip-stitched to a satin covered quilted sole. A frill of lace or narrow ribbon around the edge with a lace of ribbon rosette in front finishes the slipper.

These ribbon basket weave slippers can be made more elaborate by stitching the ribbon crosswise at regular intervals where it would form the upper part of the weave. If the ribbon is shirred it would be more effective with one color, but the shirred woven plain contrasting colors would be more effective.

Slippers of this sort make a lovely gift for the girl who is preparing her trousseau.

CITY ENGINEERS SNAPPED IN REMARKABLE PHOTOGRAPH BENEATH HANGING BRICK ROADWAY, FREAK OF FLOOD

Two views of hanging road at Tinkers creek.

This remarkable picture, taken at the recent paving conference in Cleveland, illustrates what city engineers and road builders traveled from all over the country to see. It is a brick pavement on the concrete base. The pavement still holds up with sufficient strength to support an automobile. The hanging shelf is eighty feet long and eight feet in width. The conference was held in Cleveland because it is the center of 400 miles of such rural highways. As an object lesson in proper construction, the scene on today saves a sick child tomorrow.

The sympathy to 13 is older than Christianity, however. In the old Norse mythology the 13 party was deemed unlucky because at a banquet at Valhalla, Loki once appeared, making 14, and Hoder was slain by the blind and Hoder at the instigation of the intruder.

Fashion on Board the New Steamship "Imperator"

It is pleasant to turkey trot from Sandy Hook to Cherbourg, and that is what we did on the SS. "Imperator" at least in the times that we were having dinner at the litz, lunch in the grill-room, tea in the verandah cafe and water polo and swimming elsewhere.

It is a decided sensation to be on the biggest boat in the world. Even the hardened voyager was thrilled by that fact. Every day afterwards personally conducted many sight-seeing tours, and lands of young people who called themselves "cockles" tourists, came back to their state-rooms after a three-hour exploration with exciting tales about mountain peaks, great rivers, new eating places and $10,000 suits.

From 4 to 6 in the afternoon the common garden variety of people were allowed to "see" the suite of his majesty, the German emperor, with its several bed-rooms, private saloon, dining room, many baths, and, best of all, a flower-burdened private verandah hanging over the ocean. When I wanted a sight of the ocean, one took lunch in the grill-room of the litz, which inquired the most charming place to eat on any boat that shuttles across the Atlantic.

The grill-room is in the story of the boat. It is all windows, and the seats are like the high-backed pews in a church of the revolution.

From this seat one sees and senses nothing of the boat, but rather gazes out upon the sea with something of the old sensation of Germany to be surely, is hard to decide. However, that may be, the passengers paid no attention whatever to the ocean except to realize that they could not get over to Paris without it.

The story was told on board of a woman who swept down the steps of the litz in a draped white satin gown, her hair styled high, ruffled with a diamond comb and swathed in a long rope of pearls, and who, turning to her attendant, remarked:

"I hear that it is quite rough out tonight."

"So my valet told me," he said. "Will you give me the first dance?"

The scene in the litz restaurant, which is a duplicate of the restaurant and lounge in the New York litz—Carlton, was a brilliant one. The steps lead up from the litz room where tea is served, into the dining room, which is furnished with the traditional flowers and palms and scattered with many small tables under pink shades gave a foreign atmosphere that was most attractive. Truly, the old days have passed when there were racks on the tables and clam broth was served in the berths. Gone with those days is the habit of wearing shabby clothes on the trip across the Atlantic. Such attire would have been unpleasantly conspicuous on the "Imperator." The sea-going clothes were fashionably cut and both men and women were as well turned out as if they were leading an orderly landman's life. In the daytime the men wore white flannel trousers, white tennis shoes, colored silk hose and the loose sack coats of the season. Many of the women wore white or colored linen frocks, with wide black satin sashes, small straw hats, white shoes and gay stockings.

In the evening the men wore dinner jackets and grey silk vests, instead of the formal swallow-tail, but the women wore what they chose. Some of them adopted the French fashion of a semi-dressy dinner gown, with a smart hat; others took to the English fashion of an uncovered head to match an uncovered neck. Many were over-dressed.

Coffee and rolls are sent to the rooms at the touch of a bell. At the women who like to swim took the elevators down to the depths of the ocean and stepped out into a blue and white marble bath over 50 feet long. There were two professional to teach novices to swim.

After the swim there was luncheon, after luncheon there was always action in the litz, and a kind of a kind of amusement on deck. The boat deck, which, on the "Imperator," is far above the water that one had a weird feeling of being suspended between sky and sea, was the favorite rendezvous for the swimmers after dinner, which usually lasted until 10 o'clock, there was dancing in the hall room. Usually it is difficult to get people to dance on board ships, but with the new enthusiasm for the one-berth and lense, the hall-room was crowded every night. Those who did not wish to dance or sat in chairs around the room, and not until midnight was there an empty seat. On the first night the music was just the German band had no idea what was expected of it for ragtime; but the second night, after every American girl on board had pleaded with Commodore Hans Fuser for different music, new musicians took their places, and the "Robert G. Lee" and "Tres Montagnes" swung out from the litzes delightfully. A young German baroness was the belle of the ship. She always dined with the Commodore and created a sensation by wearing a white tulle shepherdess frill with a huge white shepherdess hat and a white ivory crook tied with pink satin ribbons. There was another conspicuous passenger whom we called the "Rhinegold Maiden." She wore a costume of water-green lute slashed at the side and outlined with silver sequins. With this she wore green slippers and stockings.

On this continent, matches are everywhere. Every pocket of a man's clothing contains matches. They are scattered about on decks and in drawers and are so common and are handled so carelessly that it is not to be wondered that a large great many fires result from their use.

MOTHER! NO USE TAKING CHANCES

If child is cross, feverish, colic, give "California Syrup of Figs."

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, fretful, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give the genuine, in a few hours all the clogged up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "Fruit Laxative." Millions of mothers know it hardly because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. This also knows a little girl on today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 66-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

"The wiles were upon us," he related to the wit he was trying to impress. "Their hunting penetrated to our very marrow. We tried for our lives. But each round we knew that the ravens pack was gaining on us. Closer, closer they were so close that we could feel their feathers against our legs so that—"

"Ah," signs the lady greatly relieved, "that you must have been the man who had their muscles out—Everybody's Magazine."

"Your trick was hit me," he said. "I was in Summerland, even the dogs in vaudeville realize the value of publicity. That's better than having some chorus girl shoot you merely to get an ad."—Lionel Courier-Journal.

It's easier to follow the crowd than it is to get well up in front and help raise the dust.

MOROCCO WAR WAS COSTLY

Madrid, Oct. 3.—At a meeting of the cabinet, presided over by the king yesterday, the general situation of the country was discussed. The minister of finance reported that the fiscal year closes with an increase in the public debt of about $30,000,000, owing to the expense of the campaign in Morocco. It is feared that at the opening of parliament, on October 26, the opposition will take advantage of the financial situation to condemn the campaign. This will contribute to arouse public sentiment, which is already openly hostile war in Morocco.

At a meeting of farmers in Saragossa a resolution was passed to ask the government to abandon the war and devote all its energies to the reconstruction of Spain, now nearing bankruptcy.

GIANTS-PHILLIES IN TRIPLE-HEADER

Preceding Double-header the Teams Finish Disputed Game Ordered Played.

New York, Oct. 3.—The New York-Philadelphia game began on August 29 at Philadelphia and was stopped in the ninth inning by Umpire Brennan, was continued at the polo grounds yesterday, Philadelphia winning by a score of 5 to 4.

The longest game on record was brought to a quick finish. The unique entertainment afforded by the playing off of the disputed game preceded a double-header, the Giants winning the opener 8 to 3, and Philadelphia the second 4 to 3. In the first game, Mattewson and Margard held the visitors safe, while Chalmers was hit hard. He went to pieces in the ninth inning, when New York set four runs from five hits and two passes. The second game was called at the end of the sixth on account of darkness.

Hoarne pitched for the locals. Two errors by New York helped Philadelphia in the scoring.

Wrestling Match Arranged Between Forbes and Harris

Will Meet at Moose Hall Next Thursday Night—Forbes to Throw Harris Twice in an Hour—Forbes Accepts Rue's Challenge

A wrestling bout has been arranged between Jack Forbes the lightweight champion of Scotland, and Joe Harris of the Harris Physical Training school. Forbes, who is about the cleverest wrestler who has stepped in Edmonton for some time, has agreed to meet a 210 lb side bet, and agree to throw Harris twice in an hour.

The match will be staged in Moose hall, 441 Fraser avenue, on the night of October 8th and will be under the auspices of the Harris Physical Training school.

Harris is a very clever athlete who knows the wrestling game and will give Forbes a tough time of it. Both boys are about an equal weight and as they are both anxious to advance the interests of wrestling in Edmonton, it is believed they will endeavor to put on a good clean match with plenty of doing.

There will be two preliminaries preceding the main bout and popular prizes will be charged for the seats. Forbes met Art Smith at the "Habitat" rink recently and demonstrated that he knows how to wrestle and with a man who will not be afraid to meet him half way should give a good exhibition of the sport.

Jack Forbes, lightweight wrestling champion of Scotland, who has posted a 210 lb side bet and agreed to throw Joe Harris twice in an hour at Moose hall, October 8.

SOCCER AND RUGBY IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Two Games at Diamond Park
Tomorrow With Calgary
Teams.

A combination football double-header, which should please any kind of a football fan, will be played at Diamond Park tomorrow afternoon. A soccer and a rugby game will comprise the double-header, and the two may be seen for one admission price.

The first game, which will start at 1:30 o'clock, will be a soccer match between the Edmonton and the Calgary Canadian teams for the championship of Alberta. Their game is exciting, a great deal of interest and a big attendance is expected.

The second game is to be a rugby match between the Alberta University and Calgary Tiger teams, and will start immediately at the close of the soccer match. After seeing the snappy game which the Varsity played against the Eskimos last Saturday the rugby fans of the city will be anxious to see what kind of showing they will make against the Calgary Tigers, whom the Eskimos are to meet next Friday.

Calgary may carry away the soccer match, but it is quite doubtful if she will be so fortunate in the soccer game.

JOHNSON AGAIN WITH WASHINGTON

Washington, Oct. 2.—Walter Johnson, who is leading all pitchers in the major leagues, has signed a contract with Manager Griffith of the Washington team, for the 1914 season. The salary was not announced but it is understood to be $12,500.

TODAY IN PUGILISTIC ANNALS.

1911—Young Saylor defeated Battling Nelson in 12 rounds at Boston. The bout was important as indicating a speedy finish to the long ring career of the Durable Dan. Early the previous year but lost the lightweight championship to Ad Wolgast, and in November Owen Moran knocked him out in the 11th round of a bout in San Francisco. The Dane continued to entertain the notion that he could fight, and took on and defeated several third and fourth rounds. But his friends hoped that he could come back, but his defeat by Saylor convinced them that he was all in. It required two years more to awaken the Battler to the realization that his days of glory were over, and he recently announced his retirement from the ring.

1911—Grover Hayes stopped Tommy Murphy in third round at Chattanooga.

1909—Hugh McGeenan knocked out Tommy Jones at Melbourne.

SPORTOGRAPHY.

Owen Moran, 29 Tomorrow, a Fighter for 13 Years.

Owen Moran, who has fought most of the best little fellows of England, America and Australia during his 13 years in the ring, was born in Birmingham, England, 29 years ago come tomorrow. He recently went to Australia to meet Matt Wells and several Australian fighters. If Moran had kept away from the booze and the white lights, he might easily have become a champion.

Moran is half English and half Irish, which makes a pretty good fighting combination. He began his ring career as a bantam at the age of 16. After defeating several second-raters, he took on Digger Stanley, who outpointed him in 20 rounds. After a long string of victories, he was again outpointed by Digger in 1905. Young Joseph held him to a draw in that year and Joe Bowker defeated him in 26 rounds. In 1904 Moran defeated the late George Dixon and the once famous Pellar. Palmer, and again lost to Joe Bowker. In 1905 Owen defeated Digger Stanley, and then made his first trip to America. His principal fight on this side was with Monte Attell, and Owen was the victor in 20 rounds. In 1906 Moran had a clean string of victories, and in 1907 he defeated Frankie Neil, Al Delmont, of Boston, and Young Pierce, a Philadelphia boxer.

Returning to America in 1907, Moran was matched with Abe Attell, and on the first day of 1908 he boxed the little Hebrew 25 rounds to a draw in San Francisco. That sent Owen's stock booming, and he was again matched to fight Abraham in the Golden Gate city. Another draw was the result of the ruckus. Before leaving San Francisco, he defeated Eddie Hanlon in 20 rounds. In the east, he defeated Tommy Murphy and Matt Baldwin, and fought a draw with Frankie Neil in 1909. Early the next year he got the surprise of his life when Tommy Murphy defeated him over the 20-round route in San Francisco. A little later he knocked out Tom McCarthy, with fatal results. He knocked out Neil Nelson in the 11th round at San Francisco. Early in 1911 he was outpointed by Zackey McFarland in the 11th round at San Francisco. Last year he was defeated by Joe Mandat at Memphis, and lost on foot to Charlie White at Syracuse, and Jack White at Vernon. Early this year he fought a 20-round draw with Louie Latham, who defeated the English featherweight champion.

DEPORTATION AROUSES

INDIGNATION
London, Oct. 3.—The action of the American immigration authorities in ordering the deportation of Marie Lloyd was the subject of general conversation in vaudeville clubs and other gathering places of London variety artists last night.

Daisy Jerome, who has just returned from America, said: "What a disgraceful proceeding. It is an insult to the British artists, and I am sure that the British artists will not endorse it." Marie Sherburne also expressed the utmost surprise, and said: "It is enough to make all British artists swear off America in the future. The whole musical profession here is deeply indignant, and it is a disgrace to have an affront upon one of its leading members."

Official Averages for 1913 of Western Canada League

Statistics Tell Truth About Players who Participated in Games Last Season—Edmonton Has One Man to be Proud of, Redmond's Showing Being Excellent

The official averages of the Western Canada Baseball league which are published today contain some interesting facts for the fan to peruse. There is little in the statistics for the Edmonton fan to gloat over. Though several of the Edmonton players made good showing the average was rather poor which was to be expected.

Redmond is the only man on the Edmonton team who leads his department. He leads the second basemen of the league and leads his own team in batting with an average of .310. Whisman and Skeels are the only other Edmonton players who hit .300 mark in batting.

The order of standing of the Edmonton pitchers is: Heinrichs, Clayton, Dickenson, Biersdorfer and Dellar.

Rube Mills leads the league at batting with an average of .362 while Wood, of Moose Jaw, follows closely with .357.

Funny Stunts Pulled off at the Movies and Strange Situations Portrayed

GIRL MEETS OFFICER WHO GOES A-FIGHTING

Niggers and Other Bric-a-Brac Keep Him Busy and He Saves the Girl and Her Ma.

"A Wild Ride" or "The Horrors of an Ostrich Farm." That's the title of a moving picture film displayed last night at a picture theatre. With faring posters hanging in front of the theatre portraying the wild ride and some of the horrors it was hard for an observer to get by.

First of all there is the beautiful young girl, of course. Her hair is the ostrich farm and its horrors. Her mother takes her to a well-endowed city, where they are entertained with a dance—a decent dance—a regular society ball. And there, gentle reader, there she meets Lieutenant Laurence Durham—Lieutenant Durham of the army, probably, and not of the police force.

For the "sixth hundred and eighty-ninth time" it is shown that old reliable, honest, headstrong, but beautiful young girl and the dashing lieutenant are in a hot place to fight a horrible cannibal chief near Fort Bango.

Likewise it is the girl, and her mother, who come back to the ostrich farm. And through the ingenuity of the producer the fort and farm can't be more than two or three turns down the road from each other.

In fact, the farm and its horrors are only a short buggy ride from the town where beautiful maidens attend the law—towards in majestic appearance. And would you believe it, it's only a short buggy ride from the town in the same direction to find right in the middle of the activities of these horrible naked cannibals. A hungry ride, sir—an automobile wouldn't survive with the time that these Europeans were shot down by repeating rifles and shotguns. Some ingenious producer.

Well, ma and the boy, girl set into the buggy—ma see—guess it was an open cab—yes, it was, and onto the hot jumpy two-tracker. Away they go and pretty soon they drive over a roadless road through two clumps of bushes.

Now, right here is where the ingenious producer produces a thrill. Those nearly dead Europeans are hidden in the bushes. As the cab passes through the clump of bushes—that is, between the two clumps of bushes—those deadly hands of the natives, each carrying an eight-foot spear, point at the outfit and the two trinkets are just seen prone on the ground. Ma and the boy, girl are dragged from the cab with due consideration and headed toward a hut.

This little bit of rough-house acting plainly amuses the boy, girl, but to anyone who could see several men from the fort, and leaving from their mounts they are in the assistance of the boy, girl and her mother.

All the soldiers draw their revolvers and shoot. Now, they were so peevish that they sailed right into the clouds with their bayonettes and drove those closed away. Big the big snakes ward off the onslaughts of the soldiers with their wooden shields and spear them with their eight-foot spears. Once more, ma, there must be a few in southern California against using these weapons carelessly.

At last ma and the beautiful young girl arrive at the ranch and its terrifying horrors. In due time, Lieutenant Durham cuts and meets pa for the first time.

But, excuse me, unbeknownst to himself, he has been followed to the boy, girl's house with his horses, those pesky cannibals and their eight foot spears. They creep in within 20 feet of the house, right up in front, too, and look the house and its horses over.

But the brilliant young lieutenant gets a bunch that he is being shadowed by a bunch of shadows and peers from the eaves of a curtain through the front window. His eyebrow is good and he communicates with pa.

Pa has a cave standing in the same room and holding about a dozen modern repeating guns. Pa waves his hand and by gosh, if those two previously killed flunkies had revolvers. The whole party on the inside is now armed with these deadly revolvers. All but Lieutenant Durham. He prefers to use his own trusty revolver.

Just to show how sharp those eight-foot spears, two of them are dropped down on the front piazza from the clouds above in doubt, and they stick upright on the porch steps.

After a little flurrying by the snafus they decide to gain entrance to the house by using an ordinary post as a battering ram against the side or front of the house, with all probability the front door has been locked.

The idea proves a success, for a portion of the house is stove in when two boys backs poke the pole against the wealthy ostrich owner's house. Through the large opening the battle commences with axes and raxes and raxes. The whole push on the inside pump enough to split a Mexican revolution for fun.

Just as the cannibals, only 10 or 12 feet from the muzzle of the guns, mind such little things as bullets. Fluk, they should worry and let the bullets fly. But their main concern is to avoid someone on the line of their comrades as the judge a bullet now and then.

The party of the first part inside the house continue to shoot and shoot and shoot. As the diages outside lay down

Bright, Ruddy Cheeks For Pale Girls

No Longer any Need to be Pale, Weak or Anaemic.

By Following the Advice of Miss McEwen You Can Quickly Become Strong Again.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested. At night she is restless, she does, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton has invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up young women as his vegetable pills of Maltolite and Bitternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The following recent letter from Miss Rita McEwen, of Hamiltonburg, speaks for itself:

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly, and am available in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness were hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from The Catarthozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

and die? No. They've got $2.50 coming for that day's work, and a large town like Los Angeles to spend it in. Finally the boy, girl runs short of ammunition. Well, the steadily steady stable where pa had a magnificent string of old pigs? But she found her favorite steed that her father gave her when the heat was of no more use to him.

Those cunning naked youths turned all the magnificent string of goats loose before attacking the house. Now she was thoroughly souped. But only for a minute. Pa had also given her a new telephone outfit. So over to the ostrich corral flies our boy, girl and out of seven million ostriches she picks her pet instantly, mounts the producer of plumes and joggles away in the far, far distance.

Another scene shows her still joggling. She joggles along on that pet of hers so fast that one wonders with the speed it possesses who on earth had never furnished a box stall for it instead of some of these old nags that don't eat bugs and seeds.

At last the first bird brings her up to a driveway and she hops over onto the ground at first out—the boy, girl, and the bird. An officer standing up that road that leads to Fort Bango, expectant of the unexpected, sees her ride up to the driveway and then she's profile to some nice black Maids and here.

He's an alert individual, and realizing with superhuman intelligence what has probably happened, catches the prostrate form of the boy, girl in the entrance of Fort Bango and calls a guard mount. He's a considerable guy, too, so he provides the boy, girl with a horse and the whole American outfit to the scene of battle.

But Lieutenant Durham did not run out of ammunition in the meantime, but becoming curious as to what the boy, girl was up to when she left the house by the back window, he followed her and left the commander of the house in the house to continue dispensing food.

The handsome boy saw into leave the back window, darn the luck, and ran around the other way to meet her hero near the stables. He had left written instructions no doubt with his aid to camp, to stay around until the injured party in the house had spent all their bullets.

But Lieutenant Durham reached the stables just in time to see the boy, girl rise away an ostrich. Suddenly the hero was confronted with the cannibal chief and the chief got a few stuns on the jaw. As stated above the lieutenant did not run short of ammunition. It didn't make any difference now, anyway—he could tick this plucky chief with his pair of feet.

Pretty soon the chief got tired setting up to his feet from the ground so often, he let his back muscles relax and he fell in one hand and bears the unsuspecting lieutenant for a count.

Then the chief goes back to resume his command. He recovers his black horses just as the snafus from the fort pull up their horses and an elephant, which evidently carried some men with it, march away as the horses could show, and blaze away.

The much-desired result was now accomplished. The happy couple were all stretched out on the ground waiting for the director to say: "That's all for today, boys. Ten o'clock tomorrow morning."

Of course the house had in the meantime caught fire and burned up or down—any way you want it. Lieutenant Durham and his beautiful young girl and the lieutenant fell all over themselves after pa had given his sanction.

Truly it was some wild ride and the ostrich farm passed some horrible horrors. Do ostriches ever succeed in biting their eggs for any great length of time, gentle reader? More horrors.
